

Morrison-Maierle Acquires QRS Consulting

Acquisition expands regional expertise and client capacity

March 25, 2026 – Montana-based multi-disciplinary engineering firm Morrison-Maierle, an employee-owned engineering and professional services firm serving clients across the western United States, announced today that it has acquired QRS Consulting, a Boise, Idaho-based firm recognized for its specialized technical expertise and long-standing client relationships.

The acquisition brings together two firms with shared values and a similar approach to client service—grounded in technical excellence, practical problem-solving, and trusted partnerships. QRS's team and services will strengthen Morrison-Maierle's ability to support clients with complex infrastructure and resource challenges, while preserving the responsiveness, nimbleness, and local insight QRS is known for.

"This is about building on what already works," said Arian Bloomfield, President and CEO of Morrison-Maierle. "QRS has earned the trust of its clients by showing up, doing good work, and standing behind it. Bringing our firms together expands our capacity and depth, while staying true to the way both teams serve their clients and communities."

"For our clients, this means continuity and more resources behind the work," said Chris Boyd, Principal at QRS Consulting. "Morrison-Maierle shares our commitment to practical solutions and long-term relationships. Joining the firm gives our clients access to broader expertise while keeping the people and approach they already trust."

Clients of both firms can expect uninterrupted service and expanded opportunities for collaboration. The acquisition will help Morrison-Maierle take on larger, more complex projects while maintaining the local presence and accountability that clients value. It also represents a strategic move into the Idaho market for Morrison-Maierle, who had been requested to work in Idaho by several clients.

The acquisition creates meaningful benefits for the people at both firms in the form of career growth, stability, and opportunity, and strengthens the ability to serve clients as trusted advisors. By bringing teams together, the firm deepens long-standing client relationships and expands the experience behind them, creating a whole that is greater than the sum of its parts.

About Morrison-Maierle

Morrison-Maierle is committed to building better communities across the greater Rocky Mountain and Pacific Northwest regions. The company is a 100% employee-owned firm specializing in engineering, planning, surveying, and science. Since 1945, our clients have trusted us to deliver reliable, high-quality results, grounded in a deep understanding of local context.

Morrison-Maierle serves clients across a broad range of industries, including the commercial, healthcare, natural resources, water and wastewater, transportation, industrial, energy, and aviation market sectors.

About QRS

Based in Boise, Idaho, QRS Consulting works to improve the world around us by improving the infrastructure communities rely on. QRS Consulting is a trusted advisor to a diversity of clients, including state and federal resource management agencies, private landowners, NGOs, and others. The team at QRS brings a high-level of technical skill and a nimble approach to serve clients in the natural resources, fisheries, hydropower, and civil engineering industries.

QRS Contact

Chris Boyd, PE/SE
Principal
cboyd@qrs-llc.com
(208) 342-0091

Morrison-Maierle Contact

John Lavey, CPSM
Director of Strategic Marketing and Communications
jlavey@m-m.net
(406) 542-8880